Ogilvy was awarded a stellar 19 Bookmark awards across 12 categories at the 13th annual Bookmarks Awards, one of the country's most recognised digital marketing events.

The agency received five Silver Bookmarks, 12 Bronze, a Black Pixel and a Pixel for Purpose award.

The event took place on Thursday night, 29 July 2021, in a virtual ceremony, where the most innovative digital marketing campaigns of the past year were announced.

Ogilvy had a total of 54 finalists at this year's awards.

Among Ogilvy's winning campaigns were KFC's 'Buckarapa' and 'Instagame', and VW's 'The Drive to Defy', and 'The Sabbatical'. Ogilvy was awarded a Pixel for Purpose for AB InBev's #NoExcuse 'The Bravest Thing' campaign, and a special honours award was given to Ogilvy's Luzuko Tena for Best Contribution to Transformation in the Digital Industry.

Ogilvy's long-standing client, AB InBev, was also awarded the prestigious Digital Brand of the Year award.

Work for KFC and Volkswagen South Africa, including 'KFC Instagame' and VW's 'The Drive to Defy' were top contenders in their categories, with finalists in the Branded Content, Online Video Series, Online Video Production and Excellence in Strategy categories.

For the Rape Page campaign Ogilvy partnered with Rape Crisis to identify areas in Cape Town with the highest rape statistics. Ogilvy then designed a double page print ad and placed it in the centrefold of the Athlone News raising awareness where it's needed the most.

The multi-layered advert functioned as an advert, as awareness-raising, as information, as a resource and tool for survivors and as an innovative way to start the conversation about a difficult topic. The campaign reached an estimated 7.1 million people on the day it was launched.

Group CEO at Ogilvy South Africa: “The work and the brands that have been acknowledged at the Bookmark Awards this year celebrate creative excellence and impact produced working under the difficult circumstances that agencies, clients and consumers have had to face. Our awards tally and performance at Bookmarks this year make us incredibly proud of our creative teams. They are a tribute to our leadership and the great client partnerships that enable such impactful and noteworthy work.”

The theme at this year’s Bookmark Awards was 13 years of Moving the Industry Forward, with the focus being the recognition of powerful, memorable, and impactful marketing strategies through campaigns that inspire, educate, and build their respective brands.
