

New business magazine called #TheFutureByDesign launches

Issued by Ornico 17 Jun 2015

Brand intelligence company, Ornico, debuts custom annual title that aims to Sherpa the marketing industry into future.

Ornico - the brand, media and digital intelligence company - today launched a new, 100 plus page magazine called #TheFutureByDesign. A digital publication, #TheFutureByDesign can be read online at MarkLives.com - the exacting marketing site known for in-depth, investigative content - or at Issuu.com. #TheFutureByDesign is also available free for download in pdf format at Ornico.co.za, on iTunes and at MarkLives.com.

#TheFutureByDesign is a magazine published to stimulate discourse in the advertising and marketing sectors about smart design thinking; and about how intelligence can help create elegant solutions to the challenges and opportunities presented tomorrow's Africa today.

Created by founding editor Mandy de Waal #TheFutureByDesign is wholly owned by Ornico, and was published by its CEO Oresti Patricios, and edited by writer Jon Pienaar. The manifesto behind #TheFutureByDesign is that good growth and sustainable development means building better brands, contexts, societies and economies; and that this can only be done with imagination, creativity, innovation and intelligence.

"Ornico invested in #TheFutureByDesign because we believe that the marketing industry needs a point of contact to reimagine who we are and the role that we will play in creating a better future by design," says Oresti Patricios, CEO of Ornico. A company that provides reputation, media, advertising and brand research, as well as digital tracking and analytics Ornico has a suite of products that include Brand Intelligence™ and Fuseware™. Ornico has offices in South Africa, Nigeria, Kenya and Ghana and enjoys partnerships with expert researchers that reach across the continent.

"To initiate this discussion about the future we've identified 'sherpas' or experts who we believe can help business owners and brand managers hack the future, or better engage the future through smart thinking," Patricios says. "It is our hope that #TheFutureByDesign will become a broader, collaborative, forward-looking movement that goes way beyond just this, Ornico's contribution of a custom annual, to this industry sector," he says.

The premier issue of #TheFutureByDesign 2015/6 includes insights from:

Andrew Miller - a poet and commercial writer who has guest lectured at Wits Business School and the University of Johannesburg on urban cultures. In May 2015, Miller won the 2015 Dinaane Debut Fiction Award for his novel Dub Steps
