In Disney's comedy, Haunted Mansion, a woman and her son enlist a motley crew of so-called spiritual experts to help rid their home of supernatural squatters. They each arrive at this home for different reasons, unaware that whoever enters will be unable to leave without one of its ghosts forever joined at the hip with them.

Once they learn the gravity of the situation the hard way, they realise they must find a way to work together as a team to free themselves and the mansion from the grip of the spirits.

Inspired by the classic theme park attraction, the film is directed by Justin Simien and stars Rosario Dawson, Chase W. Dillon, LaKeith Stanfield, Tiffany Haddish, Owen Wilson, Danny DeVito, and Jamie Lee Curtis.

In Neil Blomkamp's sports drama Gran Turismo, a teenage Gran Turismo player whose gaming skills won him a series of Nissan-sponsored video game competitions aspires to be an actual professional race car driver. It is based on the Polyphony Digital racing simulation video game series, while inspired by the true story of Jann Mardenborough. The film stars Archie Madekwe as Mardenborough alongside David Harbour, Orlando Bloom, Darren Barnet, Geri Halliwell Horner and Djimon Hounsou.

The re-release of Sarafina! in cinemas pays homage to the vital role women performed during the struggle.

Sarafina is a young Black South African struggling for freedom during the apartheid. While she has remained relatively silent in her opposition of the racist government in her country, the movement to make the language of Afrikaans the official language in her school leads her to protest in the streets with her fellow students. Her anti-government views become even more intense when her favourite teacher is arrested for protesting.

“Sarafina! is known for its association with the student uprising of 16 June 1976, but what the film shows is that the youth of that era were largely supported by strong and resilient women who inspired and motivated their activism,” says producer Anant Singh.

Through a partnership with Imax, the film has been digitally remastered and additional scenes have been included. It was screened at the Cannes Film Festival last month where it participated again in the Cannes Classics Section, 31 years after its world premiere at this prestigious festival.

The film stars Leleti Khumalo; Whoopi Goldberg; Miriam Makeba; Mbongeni Ngema; John Kani and Somizi Mhlongo with the screenplay by Mbongeni Ngema and William Nicholson. The film is produced by Anant Singh and directed by Darrell James Roodt.

The heroes in a half shell first cowabunga-ed onto the big screen back in 1990 and returns in the animated adventure Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles: Mutant Mayhem. After years of being sheltered from the human world, the Turtle brothers set out to win the hearts of New Yorkers and be accepted as normal teenagers through heroic acts. Their new friend April O’Neil helps them take on a mysterious crime syndicate, but they soon get in over their heads when an army of mutants is unleashed upon them.

Strange events befall the doomed crew as they attempt to survive the ocean voyage, stalked each night by a merciless presence onboard the ship. When the Demeter finally arrives off the shores of England, it is a charred, derelict wreck.

There is no trace of the crew. This supernatural horror film is directed by André Øvredal and written by Bragi F. Schut[a] and Zak Olkewicz. South Africa will release the fully restored and remastered version of the film. Kept under lock and key for an unknown reason, Oh Dae-Su's invisible captors keep him fed and systematically sedated to avert suicide, providing only a colour television to keep him company.
